Congress!

There is nothing special in the proceedings of this body... There is considerable debating in reference to the repeal of the Habeas Corpus, nothing definite as yet.

This bill was introduced by Hon. M. H. Cruikshank.

THE WAR NEWS.

There has been no fighting of any importance in Georgia, since our last issue.

Gen. Johnston's army have fallen back [illegible] Resaca, and will probably make a stand at that point.

We have possession of Rome, Ga. We feel confident of success when a general engagement takes place.

Gen. Beauregard has whipped the enemy near Petersburg. The enemy retreating to their gunboats.

Gen. Lee's army is in a fine condition and ready and willing to meet the enemy. We think there will be a general engagement between these two armies, in a short time, and are confident of success and a triumphant defeat of the enemy in Virginia.

"HORSE THIEVES."

This is no uncommon accusation Daily it is heard sweepingly and unceremoniously. Unfortunately the offenders are all of a certain profession. Are not these wholesale and indiscriminate censures calculated to wound those who are sensitively constituted? I presume there are a few even among these who really have sensibilities. A well bred gentleman will not make a random remark, which in many instances might wound the innocent.

I have been taught from my infancy to avoid extremes. Extremes are radical and always wrong. Well now, in the first place, I assume that it is wrong to enter a charge against any of a certain class, rather than those of another class. In the second place, I assume, that it is doubly as to enter a charge against one class as a class, and hold all others blameless. And yet this is done. According to my creed, there are honest men in all classes, and christians in all churches. I would not justify a crime, but defend, the party against it. Our boys commit crimes with some show of excuse, others commit them without any. I do not pretend that the charge was originally made without some little cause. But this particular individual has gotten into the common property every body's dog. At pleasure, all curse, kick and spit upon him. Every stray horse is tracked to his camp. All petty larcenys and every variety of sins are magnanimously laid at the feet.

"'Tis true, 'tis pity and pity 'tis, 'tis true." When they first left home these same young men were by every body called the finer, the chivalry of the South. Glorious boys all of them—young ladies would not receive any suitors to visit them.—What a strange revolution in sentiment! Isn't it wonderful how those boys have changed in the short space of three years! But poor fellows I suppose they have become demoralized.

GEORGE.

Talladega, May 24, 1864.

Gen. Johnston's Address to the Army.

HEADQUARTERS ARMY OF TENNESSEE, Cassville, Ga., May 19th 1864.

General Orders?

Soldiers of the Army of Tennessee:—You have displayed the highest qualities of the soldier—firmness in combat, patience under toil. By your bravery and skill you have repulsed every assault of the enemy. By marches by day and by marches by night, you have defeated every attempt upon your communications.

Your communications are secure. You will now turn to meet his advancing columns. Truly confident in the conduct of the officers, the courage of the soldiers, I lead you to battle. We may confidently trust that the Almighty Father will still reward the patriot's toils and bless the patriot's banners.

Cheered by the success of our brothers in Virginia, and beyond the Mississippi, our efforts will equal theirs. Strengthened by his support, these efforts will be crowned with like success.

JOS. E JOHNSTON,
General.

Signed—Kinloch Falconer, A. A. G.

Confederate Congress.

RICHMOND, May 20.—The Senate passed the House bill authorising commissaries for cavalry regiments. Also, the Senate bill providing for the appointment of general officers instead of assignment by the President to command any forces in districts or departments but said officers to resume their original ranks at the will of the President.

Rives delivered an argument in support of the writ of habeas corpus. The galleries and aisles were crowded with Senators, ladies and others.

PUBLIC-SALE.

I WILL sell at my residence on Friday at 11 o'clock, a lot of household furniture, some land, a fine bar bed, and several other things too tedious to mention.

J. F. B. MAYS.

Talladega, May 24, 1864.

The Better Land.

Farewell, farewell to all below,
My Savior calls and I must go,
I'd launch my bark upon the sea,
This land is not the land for me.

I find the rugged path of sin
A rugged path to travel in,
Beyond the swelling woods I see
The land my Savior bought for me.

Oh! sinner why will you not go?
There's room enough for you I know,
Our bark is sound and passage free
And there's a better land for thee.

There angels sing and so will I,
There seraphs bow and bend the knee,
Oh! that's the land, the land for me.

No night is there, 'tis always day
And God shall wipe all tears away,
The saints their Savior's face shall see,
Oh! that's the land, the land for me.

There kindred spirits meet again,
Secure from sorrow, sin and pain,
They feast on pleasures full and free,
Oh! that's the land, the land for me.

Gen. Alfred Mouton.

Gen. Mouton, who was killed at the battle of Mansfield, was a graduate of West Point, and was about thirty seven years of age Before the war he was a planter of great wealth. He was the son of ex-Gov. Mouton, of Louisiana, a grandson of ex-Gov. Jaques Dupre, of Opelousas, and a cousin to Lucius J. Dupre, now one of the Representatives of Louisiana in the Confederate Congress. He married a cousin, Miss Dupre, who, with several children, is left to mourn his loss.

☞ The "Deosier, Texas," lately mentioned in the telegraphic dispatches, was doubtless intended for Decatur, Ala.—We cannot ascertain that there is a Deosier in Tennessee, though there is a Deosier within Decatur county. The Mouton Democrat says:

Our latest advices from the front leave the Yankees close inside their fortifications, seiging forces around the Confederate besiegers have two or three have been forced to leave Decatur by the enemy. Heavy artillery firing was heard in this place on Wednesday, supposed to be the attack, but gentlemen from the front report the firing to be in the direction of Athens.—Two or three weeks more will decide the fate of North Alabama.

☞ A gentleman who was in the fight informs the Examiner that as the Yankees approached the forces of A. P. Hill they acted out: "Come on you accursed Rebels. We will teach you how to fight. We are Western men. And here came the fight in earnest—hand to hand and man to man. But our men proved too much for the Yankees, and after a desperate struggle—each, probably as was never before known to this war—the Yankees gave way, and were soon in full retreat. Hurrahing yells from our men which might be heard for miles. They had repulsed the enemy, and he was in full retreat to the cover of his fortifications.

☞ Gen. Forrest has arrived at Tupelo with five thousand conscripts and recruits, twenty five thousand pounds of bacon, and the same amount of flour. His recruits will be organized in a few days, when the Misseganians may prepare to have some more of their dens broken up.—[Prairie News.

☞ The Commanding General of the Department of Alabama, Mississippi and East Louisiana, in order to the more effectual organization of a system for the procurment of labor, orders the following:

1. All powers of impressment of slave labor heretofore granted, are hereby revoked.

2. Impressments hereafter made will be under direct authority issuing from these headquarters.

3. The system will be carried out by one chief agent, and to insure an intelligent and just exercise of his powers, his orders will be executed through sub agents, recommended by the Governors of the respective States in which impressments are ordered.

4. All applications for labor must be made to these headquarters, and must specify the number of slaves, the length of time and the purpose for which required.

5. Impressments will be made with a due regard to the amount of labor hitherto furnished, and the burdens to be borne in future will be equalized. No impressment of labor will be made for a longer period than sixty days, unless under stringent necessity, otherwise the laborers will be returned at the end of that period.

6. All orders of exemption heretofore granted are hereby revoked. Applications for exemptions and discharges must be made to the Chief Agent of Impressment, who alone is empowered to grant such exemptions and discharges, and who will report the same to Department Headquarters.

The citizens of Alabama, Mississippi and East Louisiana on which States impressments of labor for public service may be required, are cordially and earnestly solicited to furnish such labor as the necessities of the country at this time imperatively demand.

HEADQ'RS CAMP OF INSTRUCTION,
Talladega, Ala., April 27, 1864.

GENERAL ORDERS,
No. 18.

I. Being continually represented by men, on their arrival at this Camp, that they are sent forward by enrolling officers under an assurance of obtaining "furloughs" the following extract from an order issued from this Camp, on the 11th of September, 1862, and still in force is published for the information of all concerned: "Enrolling officers will caution all persons sent to camp to come prepared to remain, as no lack of preparation will be considered a valid reason for granting furloughs."

A strict observance of this regulation is enjoined; and enrolling officers will see, as far as practicable, that all persons sent up by them are properly prepared, with clothing and such other requisites as may be obtained, for immediate service.

II. Recruits will not be ordered to Camp without examination by the Medical Board.

III. Recruits will not be furnished guard, unless for some offence alleged against them, with reasonable presumption of truth; and every precaution will be adopted to correct the vulgar fallacy, that enrollment, under the Conscription laws, by the properly authorized officers, implies anything discreditable to the persons enrolled, or that it partakes in any degree of the character of an "arrest."
